Peace with Creation

Peace with creation is taking action so we can make up for how much we have damaged God's creation, the Earth. Peace with creation looks like people doing all the little things they can do to make sure we are protecting the Earth instead of harming it.

To me, it looks like people coming together as a community and sharing their resources with other less fortunate people, because they deserve God's gifts as much as we do. Another way I see it is that we have to give back to the Earth, all the resources and care it has given us. We have to remember that our world is God's creation.

We can co-create with God by doing everything in our power to not harm the Earth even more. Examples of what we can do are putting our old clothes in clothing bins, recycling paper and plastic, growing a garden, and more!

If we want to practice being at peace with creation, we need to confront our habits that disturb nature. We need to recognize that God is the creator of all things, and that He chose us humans to protect the Earth. We can find proof of this in Genesis 2.15, where it says, 'Then the Lord God placed the man in the Garden of Eden to cultivate it and guard it.'

This verse reminds us that looking after our Earth is not just a task, it is our responsibility.
