

Ava Sculli 7.3

iii Why is it Important for young people to reconnect with creation? It is important because we are the future of this earth and we have to look after the environment now.

I chose the following Laudato si quote: "The earth is essentially a shared inheritance whose fruits are meant to benefit everyone."

This quote connects to what I drew because the quote reflects on everyone looking after and sharing the earth's speciality. I included in my art many children watering the earth, kissing the earth and working together because children are the future carers and need to make a change to help save our world. Looking after creation connects with our college theme of hope because it is about children trying and hoping to make the world a better place by caring for the earth and everything on it.