

Part B

By: Lam Huynh

Poster – Why is it important for young people to reconnect with creation?

Reflection

“Because of us, thousands of species will no longer give glory to God by their very existence, nor convey their message to us. We have no such right” (Laudato Si',). My artwork contrasts two worlds: one side peaceful, vibrant, and alive with nature, the other scarred and ruined by human neglect. This highlights both creation's beauty and fragility. Caring for the earth reflects Hope, reminding us that renewal and a flourishing future are possible.

It is important for young people to reconnect with creation because they are the future caretakers of the world. By appreciating the wonder and value of nature, young people can grow in responsibility, compassion, and respect for life. Reconnecting with creation fosters a sense of belonging and stewardship, reminding us that we are part of God's creation, not separate from it. This connection inspires action, helping ensure that the earth remains a place of life and beauty for generations to come.