

We're Trusted With Creation by Layla Seyis

Our common home is slowly fading,
It's our time to start helping; it's time to start aiding.
Our harmful actions are slowly eating,
Away at our earth, our home, our greeting.

We're hurting our home by being wasteful,
The results of our lifestyle are lazy, distasteful.
We're leaving our rubbish amongst natural beauty,
To pick it all up becomes our new duty.

What happened to seeing friends eye to eye?
We're stuck to our screens as life goes by.
We need to connect; we can't be distant,
The friendships we hold will become nonexistent.

The ignorance is growing for people in need,
Some are struggling to live, some are struggling to feed.
Our common home's resources are being taken for granted,
The beauty within nature needs to be replanted.

We're taking what we want and not what we need,
It's destroying the Earth, and we're growing in greed.
Leaves on trees will become grey and frail,
If we let our harmful acts go up the scale.

God had planned for love and peace,
But if our lifestyle is wasteful, that plan will crease.
We need to take on God's trust and start our change,
Because a healthy, loved Earth will be our home in exchange.
