

Part B

My creative artwork expresses that harm and peace with creation means recognising the deep connection between humanity, the earth, and God. Laudato Si' warns us that harming nature is not only an environmental issue, but also a moral and spiritual failure that leaves the most at risk both people and ecosystems are suffering the consequences that we make and made. When I think of peace with creation, I imagine a world where we live simply, care for the land, and see all creatures as part of God's family. Scripture tells us that "the earth is the Lord's and everything in it" (Psalm 24:1), reminding us of our duty to honour creation as a sacred gift.
