

"We're all travelling together on this amazing journey of life - people, animals, plants, rivers, mountains - everything! God loves all creation, so we should too." - Pope Francis

In the laudato si', Pope Francis wrote: "We're all travelling together on this amazing journey of life - people, animals, plants, rivers, mountains - everything! God loves all creation, and we should too". This made me want to see a world full of peace in our everyday lives. Imagine seeing a beautiful landscape without any rubbish flying around in the background! This is why I chose the question "What does peace with creation look like to you?". My artwork displays mountains and a waterfall with lots of lush trees and nature surrounding it. This to me truly feels like a peaceful world like how God had always intended it to be.

Caring for creation demonstrates our college theme of hope since the hope is to form a better tomorrow. Caring for creation is intended to do the same. They both have the same aim and revolve around the same idea like we all are. We all want a better environment so the college theme of hope is a perfect way to resemble this all.
